

This project was spawned from an idea I had about a decade ago...
I had forced my friends to write down their dreams for me.

This was a two-part chore; the first part involved them writing down the dream in as much detail as possible, and the second part included a verbal interview. Often the interview would bring more of the images and details (textures/sensations) of the dream to the surface. The intended result was a collection of short stories based on these dreams including sketches by the dreamers and myself.

It was to be titled Dreamcatcher.
This collection of songs is my contribution to the mix.

I know that this collection will confuse a few of my listeners, but the theme demanded this stance and variety of style.
These songs were recorded and based on dreams i had spanning from december of 2008 until march 2009
